ABSTRACT

The South Dakota Climate Office is the main resource for South Dakota climate and weather data. The collection is composed of material from 1893 to 2002, including selected data sheets from South Dakota as well as Iowa and Minnesota weather reporting stations.

HISTORICAL NOTE

The South Dakota State Climate Office is the recognized climate office for South Dakota supplying climate and drought information, data, tools, outlooks and a variety of other climate-related information to serve the state of South Dakota. Information is available to people involved in agriculture, industry, public safety and the general public through web sites, social media and print and electronic media.

CONTENT AND ARRANGEMENT

ARRANGEMENT

This collection is arranged into series:

- Administrative Records
- Observation Data Sheets

CONTENTS NOTE

The South Dakota Climate Office Records consists mainly of weather observation data sheets from South Dakota as well as some weather reporting stations in Iowa, Minnesota, and Wyoming. The data sheets are comprised of daily observations recorded by volunteers in communities throughout the state. Data about precipitation, air temperature, soil temperature, and various other forms of climatological information is gathered. Data gathered is varied based on the complexity of the observation equipment based at each station.

The Administrative Records consist of various office records, such as graduate student master's theses, photographs, and grants.
